WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE AGAIN

The Colorado House of Representatives have passed the Woman's Suffrage bill, by a vote of 35 to 26. The Governor is supposed to favor the bill. There is some prospect, therefore, that it will be enacted, unless there is a strong protest against it. Ever since the Legislature met, there has been a strong lobby in Denver pushing this measure, and perhaps some of our legislators have really been convinced thereby that the women of Colorado want to vote.

We do not believe that a majority of the women of the State desire the franchise, but those who do are working for it actively, while those who do not are making no protest against having this new and responsible duty thrust upon them. It would be a good idea, we believe, for the women who do not want to vote to say so at this time. Petitions could be drawn up and signed and sent to the Legislature within a week, if some one in each important place would take hold of the matter and push it.

Meanwhile, the newspapers ought to take the matter up, and urge the Legislature not to be in haste to thrust upon the women of the State this heavy burden. For the most part, the women especially those who are married—have enough to do already without the additional duty which the franchise would entail upon them. It must be remembered, too, that the logical and inevitable corollary of woman's suffrage is office-holding by women, and their incorporation, in case of need, in the militia and the police force. All this is aside from the question whether women are qualified by their knowledge of public affairs and the constitution of their nature to vote with good judgment and discretion. That subject it is unnecessary to discuss at this time. It should be enough to defeat the measure that the majority of women do not want the ballot. We have enough voters now who do not vote, why add to the number?

AFRAID OF HIS PARTY.

If Mr. Cleveland were to conduct the entire machinery of Government alone for the next four years, or with the aid of his chosen ministers of State we should know pretty definitely what to expect, and so would he. As it is however he must reckon with Congress. Now that body is about two-thirds Democratic and one might suppose therefore that Mr. Cleveland could count upon its support for his policy and find in it an efficient helper in his administration. President Harrison relied upon the Fifty-first Congress in this way and was not disappointed. The majority of that Congress co-operated heartily with him and the result was a large body of affirmative and progressive legislation in line with his principles and in accord with his policy.

Right here however comes in the essential difference between the two parties. The Republican party was first last in support of the platform upon which the President and the Fifty-first Congress were elected. Its leaders were trained to lead and to take responsibility, and its legislators were used to embodying in laws the ideas maintained by the party. The Democratic party is hopelessly divided. A large part of it is bitterly hostile to the declarations made in its own platform adopted last summer at Chicago, that the President positively does not dare to call the Congress together in extraordinary session though the need is pressing for fear it might instead of enacting such measures as the Chicago platform and party leaders and smart laws exactly opposite in spirit and effect to the policy he favors and to the principles set forth in the "Declaration of Principles" made last June. The President has apparently a very [illegible] policy to [illegible] exactly upon the [illegible] but the party which [illegible] by a [illegible] majority of [illegible] votes put forth that platform as its [illegible] will not support him in [illegible] it out.

This is an instructive illustration of the character and tendencies of the Democratic party and of its inherent incapacity for government.

ANOTHER BILLION CONGRESS.

The appropriations of the Fifty-first Congress amounted to $988,417,182—in round numbers a billion dollars. These are Senator Allison's figures. Mr. Holman includes in the appropriations of that Congress all those that were made necessary by the legislation of that Congress whether they were for the years 1890-'92 or for the years 1892-'94 and thereafter. In this way he manages to pile up an aggregate of $1,056,000,000.

On the appropriations of the Fifty-second Congress both agree. They amount to $[illegible].

Mr. Holman claims a reduction for the Fifty-second Congress of $[illegible]. Mr. Allison makes an increase of $[illegible]. Holman's figures seem to be the fairer, but leaving aside that question entirely it is acknowledged on all hands that the Fifty-second Congress of which Mr. Holman has been the leader so far as it had any leader at all, this Congress which adopted a self-denying ordinance as its first legislative act pledging itself to reduce expenses,—this Congress which has refused scores of really necessary appropriations thereby crippling almost every branch of the public service, has managed somehow to appropriate with all its parsimony, more than a billion dollars.

Nobody would have thought much of this probably if the Democrats had not made such a tremendous hullabaloo about the extravagance of the Fifty-first Congress and boasted so loudly of what they were going to do in the way of economy.

By and by most of the Democrats except Holman and his handful of cheese parers will find out that this, as Speaker Reed said two years ago is a billion dollar country. They have a habit of finding out anywhere from four to ten years too late that the Republicans were right, and of camping on the old Republican ground after the army of progress has marched on.

The Democrats of Denver have nominated a straight municipal ticket, on a platform whose principal plank is a demand for the free and unlimited coinage of silver coupled with a denunciation of our Democratic President for his opposition to that policy. What connection free coinage may have with a good administration of purely local affairs does not appear on the surface.

General Thomas T. Eckert has been elected President of the Western Union Telegraph Company as the successor of the late Dr. Norvin Green. General Eckert has been general manager of the company for some years, and will officer ably in accord with Dr. Green. The promotion has been fairly earned and is worthily bestowed.

At last the Kindergarten bill is through the Legislature and will probably become a law. The measure is a good one in principle. Its details must be tested by a practical application.

It looks like a case of Mohammed and the mountain reversed. In this case the Prophet would not go the Hill, so the Hill went to the Prophet.

Willing to Pay.

When the subject of doctor's fees is mentioned a well known physician likes to tell the story of a young man who was very ill and very poor to whom he gave unremitting care and finally succeeded back to health.

Before he had recovered his strength he dragged himself feebly to the doctor's office and endeavored to express his gratitude which was not greater than his grief that he had nothing but thanks with which to repay the debt.

"Unless," said the young man hesitatingly, "you would be willing to accept payment in my way."

"What's your way?" inquired the doctor with some amusement.

"I am a musician by profession," replied the young man. "I teach the flute, and I should like to give you some lessons upon it."

"Ah!" exclaimed the doctor thoughtfully, "so you are a flute player. I'll tell you," he said whimsically, "I am too busy a man to take lessons on the flute, but suppose you make yourself comfortable here in the office while I go my rounds and blow out the time on it, you think you owe me."

The young man, who appears to have been a fair musician, at once took his beloved flute from its bag and was able to pay the payment when he caught the doctor's expression and saw that the suggestion was made in joke.

He seemed so oppressed with gratitude and anxiety to do something, says the doctor, in telling the story, that I let him blow out an entertainment for some poor children. He afterward played very fairly, and I feel certain he blew out the entertainment. I don't know that I ever enjoyed a concert more.

Gold Discovery by Magnet.

I was recently present at the discovery of gold in the Emberton district of New South Wales, and I thought it worth while to give a description of it. A Australian was tapping at the bush, and he said he felt there was a lump of gold. I asked him how he knew it, and he said he had found a lump of gold by means of a magnet. One day some time afterwards he had been fishing in a creek, and had dropped a magnet into the water. After fishing for some time he secured a lump of gold. He had lost the magnet, and he had to go back to the place and search for it. He found it after some three weeks' hard search, and he carried it home in a magnet.

When I reached the Emberton station I prepared to receive the old man. I lowered my head and bent to the wheel as we started. After the jolting of the first half hour I felt that I had added a fresh attraction to my calling. I was in no condition to receive company. Upon examination I found that they were gold. Is Migration an Instinct?

Could birds travel so great a distance from their homes over a route never traversed before, and that once or twice every year, if nature has planted in them an instinct so very resembling the governing cause for great flocking birds? We may well look for instances in the case of the annual flight. They fly directly from one perch to another with such a certainty and often the young birds precede their parents. Their habit has been the source of many beautiful poems and passages in the Bible. Indeed, in fact, every year [illegible] And in fact every [illegible] the most prosaic and [illegible] the matter in a disgust. Laying Brick in Cold Weather.

Never saw them lay hot brick in hot mortar with the thermometer 16 degrees below zero," said a prominent New York lawyer at Willard's. "It was a revelation to me. On my way home from a western trip I stopped at Duluth. The thermometer registered the figures I have named but building was going on just the same on a dozen brick buildings, one of which was an office building cost $[illegible]. In the east we shut up shop in the building line in freezing weather because frozen mortar loses its temper and is worthless. But out there it remains so below the freezing point. As they use it it sets before freezing sets which set it all right.

A Curious Marriage Ceremony.

Some interesting notes have been contributed to a North Borneo newspaper by Mr. Crauch, the governor of British North Borneo, respecting a recent visit made by him to the island of Banguey. There he found a tribe of Dusuns differing widely in language, religion and customs from other tribes bearing that name. Marriages are performed in the forest in the presence of two families. There is no public gathering or feast. The rite consists in transfusing a drop of blood from a small incision made with a wooden knife in the calf of the man's leg to a similar cut in the woman's leg. After marriage the man takes the bride to her home where he resides in future as a member of the family.

How Food is Adulterated in England.

The bread we eat is no doubt sound when bought at the shops of bakers doing a large trade, but there is a certain quality of flour which deteriorates more and more. The improved (?) system of grinding the corn in cylinders heats the flour before it is ready for kneading, the ovens are heated too rapidly and there is the practice of using damaged grain which is most reprehensible.

In the golden age our forefathers were content to use water for the purpose of strengthening the milk, now it is adulterated with rice flour and pounded bullocks and calves brains, and slightly sweetened with a saccharine substance. Used as a substitute for butter even margarine is often adulterated and is simply some fatty substance colored with carrot juice and flavored with [illegible] nuts, and having only the appearance of sound margarine. Not only is chicory usually mixed with ground coffee, but there is an artificial berry manufactured and sold as coffee to a great extent. Frozen meat is taking the place of fresh meat, and any quantity of wine is sent into the market as claret and Burgundy which has not a single drop of grape juice in it.

Many brewers have learned to dispense with barley and several kinds of mineral waters are nothing more than river water disguised by the use of chemicals. A quantity of alcohol is distilled from some kind of wood, and even from coal tar oil is adulterated with rancid oil. No doubt there are numerous articles of food which are unadulterated but it is only those who are scrupulous and honest that they are becoming scarcer every day.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Heavy Cars the Safest.

Every commercial traveler has an opinion of his own as to that position which makes a car the safest one in a train. Some of them hold that it is the one next the baggage car; the majority maintain that the center of the train is the least dangerous while there are still individuals, in the minority to be sure who favor the rear car.

These opinions have been gained in many instances from practical experience in railroad wrecks which are of course, by no means infrequent in certain sections of the country. As such they are entitled to consideration but the dissimilar views really go to show that the position of a car in a train as regards its greater or less safety is a matter of speculation alone.

Upon one matter however all the traveling men agree and that is that no matter what the position of the car is the safest one of all are the heavy sleeping, parlor buffet cars and the like. They are commonly referred to by the drummers as better than an accident policy. There is every reason for the holding of this favorable opinion of these cars. Their heavier frames and trucks render their telescoping a difficult matter and they are less likely to leave the rails in a time of collision than other cars in consequence of their greater weight.—New York Herald.

How to Keep the Feet While Walking.

From the early days since the walk and carriage have been a matter of study it has been decided by all authorities on the subject that the proper position of the feet was heels together and toes out which is the present military position. The English rule is that the angle at which the toes should be turned out on dress parade or in marching is 60 degrees. This throws the feet into an extremely unnatural position which it is practically impossible to maintain in marching. This is about the degree to which the dancing master presses the toes in pupils and the average well trained woman turns out her feet at a considerably less angle—about 45 degrees.

Strange as it may seem very little attention has been given to the position of the feet at the best physical training schools though the importance of the manner of walking will be appreciated when it is known that in certain diseases a plaster cast of the feet is fitted to the feet in walking and is kept as a part of the diagnosis.—Chicago Tribune.

Powerful Effect of Pure Saccharine.

Saccharine should never be taken in a pure state. Some idea of its power will be conveyed when it is understood that one part of it will give a very sweet taste to 10,000 parts of water. Tasted in too large a quantity as Dr. Fahlberg observes it acts upon the nerves in such a way as to paralyze the sense of taste just as powerful musters unstrung the strings of a harp. Its effect upon the optic nerves is [illegible] Washington Star.

A TYPEWRITER CIPHER

A Code That Could Be Easily Employed by Transposing Type Bars.

A curious application is referred to certain possible uses of the typewriter is made by M. Frye. It is well known that a favorite form of cipher writing consists in substituting certain letters for others, each party to the correspondence having the key by which he can replace the substituted ones by those intended to be read. M. Frye points out that a secret correspondence of this sort can be carried on very readily by means of a typewriter. All that is necessary is to transpose certain types on the typebars so that for example touching the key marked A will print C, B will print B and so on.

After one instrument has been so transposed the other is to be correspondingly rearranged so that the key C will print A, the key B will print B and so on. Then X, the correspondent at one end of the line on receiving a cipher dispatch from the other X has only to copy it on his typewriter. The machine, so transposing the letters automatically, will at once give an accurate translation while X's reply written on the same typewriter which translated X's original dispatch will form an unintelligible string of letters which by copying on Y's typewriter will be in its turn translated. A cipher correspondence of this kind has an advantage over the ordinary sort in that the two parties use different although reciprocal ciphers and a comparison of dispatches captured from each will give little clue to the reading of either. Moreover it would not be very difficult with some typewriters which have two space keys to make the space keys accurate types so that the document should be an uninterrupted string of letters. Such writing is very difficult to decipher from the impossibility of telling where the words begin or end yet the corresponding instrument by mere copying would translate it perfectly.

Another use of the typewriter which M. Frye suggests is an instrument for short hand writing. Most stenographers in addition to the characters for sound, employ a large number of abbreviations and signs usually of their own devising which no one but themselves can understand. Hence it comes that stenographers cannot read any one else's writing but their own and occasionally fail to read that when their use of abbreviations has been too liberal. M. Frye says, very truly, that characters indicating sounds with sufficient accuracy can readily be found in the typewriter alphabet while a code of abbreviations might easily be agreed upon among stenographers. With such a phonetic system of using the characters and a reasonable number of abbreviations it would be easy to write 400 words a minute on a typewriter which would be fast enough for the most rapid speaker while the stenographic writing would have the great advantage of being legible to any other stenographer besides the one who wrote it.—American Architect.

POPULATION OF COLORADO SPRINGS

A. D. 1900 10,000.

There is no reason why the rate of increase will not be as great as for the past seven years. It ought to be greater. The city will then cover three times the territory it does at present.

DO I SAY ON DOUBT?

That in seven years the value of every foot of ground in and around the city will have doubled? Well! that is better than 10 per cent compound interest. A superb investment! Colorado Springs real estate is the best gold mine you can strike. It has always paid good dividends.

To the Editor of The Gazette.

In response to the item in Wednesday's issue calling for nominations for school director I would say that the committee appointed by the W C T U a few weeks ago after looking over the field, reported at the last meeting their unanimous choice for candidate to be Mrs. Rina Dresher Gittings.

May we consider Mrs. Gittings eminently qualified to fill the position will be seen later ONE OF THE COMMITTEE

Trees Require Good Soil

Southern soil seems to possess the necessary substances for the growth of all species of trees and plants natural to warm climates. Substances that contribute to the nutrition of plants will not as food for trees and as we see the physical properties of the trees then shed their leaves and other matter have a direct share in their nutrition. There are some soils so hard and clayey that the roots of trees cannot spread and thus they fail to reach the substances which they require for food. Hence the trees become stunted in growth and is soon killed falling to the ground to become mere rotting ashes nutrition for some other trees or plant which can subsist in such soil—Boston Transcript

A Good Dressing For Shoes

When meditating a trip a rainy day it is a wise plan to rub the shoes with a waterproof mixture which will make them soft pliable and hard to water good recipe for this is an ounce of flaxseed wax an ounce of turpentine a quarter of an ounce of Burgundy pitch melted over a slow fire with a half pint of oil. Be cautious with the turpentine. This mixture may be applied after and will be found really excellent—New York World

New Use For a Linen Cuff

Look here said a well known man the other day this is a letter from a friend who is now in Pittsburg. The speaker produced a soiled cuff on which a message had been written. The cuff bore the stamp of the Pittsburg post office as well as a canceled postage stamp. The message read I haven't any paper at hand but I note Sam will transmit this cuff for which I have no further use. Linen is of no use to a man who is dead flat busted. An Artist's Friends

"Have you a friend in the world? Well you might as well have none at all. Have your friends put any money on the venture? Well they will not spend a dollar for you. I warn you that you will find it so. I have been in this business a long while. I have told all my other patrons what I now tell you and they have all found every word was true." Thus spoke a picture auctioneer to an artist who was negotiating an exhibition to be followed by a sale of the pictures. The two events followed one another and the prophecy was fulfilled not quite true. At the sale there was a notable absence of the artist's friends. Of the best of them only two or three who were not among the rich once either came or bought anything. The others stayed away saying afterward that they did not feel well or that they saw that the artist got notices and was bound to do well—he did in spite of them

There is nothing extraordinary about this situation. The great difficulty is that the personal friends of the artists know them too well and like them too much to be certain that their judgment is fair and reliable when they come to exercise it. In determining the market value of their work. Or even if this established this value is great his rich friends can't afford to buy and he cannot sell. The pictures they could have got cheap when their presence would have sufficed to tell the artist. The poor friend is left to shift without work until they have satisfied that he never was what he was trying and has fallen—New York Sun

Profitable and Safe.
Whether the times are good or bad, inside business properties in this city always yield good incomes and advance in value at the same time. They have plenty of room for further advances in value, for if buildings of one and two stories will yield an income of ten per cent. on values, buildings of five and six stories will pay even better. We offer for sale a fine Tejon business property that is leased for a term of years to a reliable tenant, and the rents pay ten per cent. on the price asked. The property is offered one tenth cheaper than any similar property in the same location, and is worthy the attention of any capitalist who desires a safe, sure and permanent investment.
